PURPOSE OF LEGISLATION

The purpose of H.R. 2220 is to modify the treatment of certain bargain-price options in leases to purchase real estate at less than fair market value by the General Services Administration (GSA).

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

GSA is authorized to enter into lease agreements for commercial real estate for the purposes of providing space for a federal agency.¹ According to the Government Accountability Office (GAO), negotiating an option to purchase as part of a lease agreement could reduce costs to the taxpayer by providing a future option to own the building as often GSA may lack the budget authority to purchase a building outright.²

In the 1990s, changes in budgetary scorekeeping rules established by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) adjusted how the inclusion of discounted purchase options in leases are treated under the budgetary scoring rules.³ For example, OMB scoring rules state that, “[w]hen the lease agreement contains an option to purchase at less than fair market value . . . and the option can be exercised without additional legislation, it will be presumed that the option will be exercised . . .”⁴ As a result, when GSA includes such options in its leases, OMB will presume GSA will exercise those options and eventually own the property. Such leases—leases leading to ownership—are generally treated as capital leases for the purposes of budgetary treatment and scoring.⁵ The budget authority needed for a capital lease in essence is the total cost of such lease over the entire lease term.⁶ As a result, GSA would need to have the full budget authority for the total value of the lease upfront making it impractical given the budgetary constraints as noted by the GAO.⁷

A recent example of the impact of the current OMB scoring rules on GSA’s management of buildings is the Department of Transportation (DOT) headquarters building in Washington, D.C. In 2002, GSA sold property at the then-federally owned Southeast Federal Center to a private company for $40 million to develop and build a new DOT facility.⁸ OMB scoring rules limited the ability of GSA to maintain an interest in the real property for these purposes, such as through a leaseback arrangement which would have allowed GSA to maintain equity in the property.⁹ In 2006, GSA began leasing the newly built building and while the lease included an option to purchase, due to the scoring rules, such option could not be at a discounted amount unless GSA had the budget authority upfront for the full cost of the lease over the term of the lease.¹⁰ If GSA had access to full, upfront funding, GSA may have been able to construct the DOT building for $294 million and avoid leasing altogether.¹¹ Instead, GSA leased the building and spent $753 million from 2006 to 2020.¹² Unable to negotiate a discounted purchase option upfront, GSA purchased the building in 2020 for $768 million based on its fair market value.¹³

Despite examples of savings from GSA's use of purchase options below market value, GSA's ability in recent years to negotiate leases with such options has been severely limited due to the budgetary scoring rules.¹⁴

H.R. 2220 amends GSA's leasing authority to allow GSA to include discounted purchase options in its leases by conforming such authority to the current budgetary scoring rules by requiring congressional authorization for GSA to exercise such options. By removing the presumption outlined in the rules that such options will be exercised resulting in a capital lease, inclusion of such a purchase option in a GSA lease in and of itself would not trigger a capital lease.
